

U3AC Environment group - past events
(in academic year order – most recent first)

2024

15 November 2024

Our Changing Water Environment – Challenges and Opportunities

2022

7 December 2022

Just a drop: River Cam in crisis, problems and solutions

Water is life how to use less

2021

7 January 2021

Environment Pandemics and the Environment: what have we learned? Workshop

7 October 2021

The Glasgow international climate change conference (COP26): What can we expect?

2020

25 June 2020

Water “water, water everywhere but maybe not...” Workshop

2019

16 April 2019

Plastics Workshop

16 September 2019

Climate Change Workshop

2018

23 January 2018

Resources and Recycling Seminar

5 September 2018

Food Waste Seminar

2017

10 February 2017

Is Cambridge Air Killing You?

A seminar sponsored by the Environment Committee, U3AC, at the Friends Meeting House, Jesus Lane, Friday 10 February 2017

There were three speakers:

Dr Alison Greig, Director of Education for Sustainability at Anglia Ruskin University. Her current research interests lie in exploring the role of education in creating a more sustainable future. She has a background in physical geography and for a number of years worked on urban air pollution issues.

Heather Wallis, writer, lecturer, and film-maker. Her talk shares strategies for coping with problems in a difficult world, be they practical, emotional or issues concerning our health and wellbeing. With a positive attitude we can fight that 'I can't do anything about it feeling'.

Jo Dicks, Environmental Quality & Growth Manager at Cambridge City Council where he manages a team of Environmental Scientists, Engineers and Environmental Health Officers specialising in Energy Efficiency, Air Quality, Contaminated Land, Noise and Authorised Processes.

2015

March 2015
Transport Workshop

2014

July 2014
Climate Change Workshop
